COUNTY OVERVIEW

Located in the heart of Maryland, Baltimore County is home to vibrant and diverse communities. Its convenient location, affordable living, superior educational opportunities and talented workforce, make Baltimore County premiere destination for business and development.

Strategic Advantages

- Large educated talent pool and access to universities
 - Home to 5 Universities: Community College of Baltimore County, Goucher College, Stevenson University, Towson University, University of Maryland Baltimore County
 - Closely located other key state universities including John's Hopkins University and the University of Maryland College Park
- Access to both a major port & major airport (international markets)
 - Close proximity to the Port of Baltimore, BWI Airport, and Tradepoint Atlantic make Baltimore County a worldwide logistics hub
 - Location and infrastructure perfectly position Baltimore County to connect with other key markets across the Mid-Atlantic (Baltimore, DC, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, NY/NJ)
- AAA Bond Rating
 - 1 of only 55 counties in the Nation (1.8%) to achieve an AAA bond rating
 - A Fiscally responsible government and strong economic base allows Baltimore County to provide key incentive programs at lower interest rates than most other counties in the nation
- Lower taxes than surrounding jurisdictions
 - Baltimore County properties pay only half as much in real property tax ($1.10 per $100 of assessed value) as their downtown neighbors in Baltimore City ($2.248 per $100 of assessed value), providing the value of access to the City at a more affordable cost

REAL ESTATE

Commercial Property Market

Baltimore County has a stable and resilient office market with competitive vacancy rates and 1-year trends that reflect steady demand. The flex sector experienced a slight drop in vacancies alongside the highest rent growth, signaling demand for adaptable spaces. Retail and industrial properties saw minor increases in vacancy rates; however, both sectors posted rent growth, suggesting continued investor interest and consumer activity. Overall, the county's real estate market is showing healthy stability, with rising rental values across all property types and relatively stable vacancy rates.

Commercial Permit Activity

Baltimore County's commercial permit activity in Q4 2024 presented mixed trends. While new commercial permits declined by 25.0% compared to Q4 2023, the rolling 4-quarter total remained stable, indicating consistent long-term development activity. AAR/Miscellaneous commercial permits saw an 18.7% increase in Q4 2024, suggesting heightened renovation and alteration projects, though the rolling 4-quarter total dipped slightly by 3.5%.

Notably, the total value of all commercial permits surged by 40.0% in Q4 2024, reflecting higher-value projects despite fewer new permits. However, on a rolling 4-quarter basis, the total permit value declined by 22.5%, signaling a slowdown in overall commercial investment compared to the prior year.

Overall, while new commercial development saw a short-term dip, strong permit values and increased renovation activity highlight continued confidence in Baltimore County's commercial market.

EMPLOYERS & EMPLOYMENT

Comparison to Other Jurisdictions

Baltimore County remains a leading economic force in Maryland, ranking 2nd in the state for number of businesses, jobs, Gross Domestic Product (GDP), and Gross Regional Product (GRP). With a GRP of $64.5 billion, the county outperforms most jurisdictions except Montgomery County. It also holds the 3rd position in population, civilian employment, and labor force, reflecting its large and active workforce.

While maintaining a low cost of living (index) of 128.1, which is 2nd best among MD's 5 largest counties, Baltimore County also maintains a strong job market and business environment, with over 411,000 jobs and 448,539 people in the labor force. The county's growing number of private establishments and stable employment levels further emphasize its economic resilience and ability to attract businesses. These rankings highlight Baltimore County's significant role in the regional economy as a hub for employment and business growth.
